Scenario 1: Mogadishu, October 3rd, 1993 • Engage in a full-scale war with Mogadishu, Somali clan militias, and the local militia commanders. • Lead a Ranger Assault Team or a Delta Force Operational Detachment Alpha team on three missions to eliminate key figures in the city. • Fight your way through a warzone that features a hand-drawn setting created by award-winning artist and interactive illustrator Nate Adams. • Utilize an expansive game map that allows for exploration and immersion. • Eliminate targets by extracting them with a vehicle and dispatch them from afar with an automatic weapon. • Complete various mission objectives, which are tied to a three-day timeline. • Trigger the resumption of hostilities when the clock runs out. • Control the game via a comprehensive tactical interface in which you direct all of the missions and manage your squad's key assets. • Fight alongside historical characters who were in Mogadishu during the Battle of Mogadishu. • Trigger the resumption of hostilities when the clock runs out. • Control the game via a comprehensive tactical interface in which you direct all of the missions and manage your squad's key assets. All Game Controllers and Placement: Use a keyboard or gamepad with a mouse pointing device (an Xbox 360 controller with a USB adapter will also work). Gameplay Features: Day of Heroes does not have buttons on your gamepad or controller. It has a keyboard or gamepad, and it's up to you how you want to use it. The default layout is designed for keyboard and mouse, and we've included a good number of easy-to-use hotkeys on the keyboard that allow you to quickly switch between layers or manage your keys. With such a vast interface, a gamepad, if used, should be in your hot-zone, and we've included a secondary bindable button for easy switching. If you'd like to use your gamepad, we've included support for Xbox 360 controllers and controllers using a USB adapter. After completing a tutorial scenario, you will have access to the minigame menu and three web-based training modules. Customizable options will allow you to control the number of players in the scenario, the number of battlepacks (scenarios), and the number of days before the game starts. Both the tutorial and web-based training modules are an excellent tool to quickly get you up-to-speed.

What's new:

With the completion of several successful SEP campaigns, our community is already well on its way to next year's hypothetical SOLO campaign. One of the new additions for this hypothetical is the Oort Cloud, our first 'out there' object. Before we get to the campaign itself, there is a good deal of background that comes out of this and one of the most intrepid of our astronomers have already taken this out there to prove it. Part of this background comes from the work that the High Temporal Frequency Observatory (HTFO) group has done which is detailed at the following link: What their group has done is used the July 2011 eclipse of the sun as an opportunity to look at high frequency radio flares and solar wind interaction using a wideband radio spectrograph. The results could very well not only reproduce the Oort Cloud but completely explain it. No occultations were necessary. There are plenty of caveats here but that is a story for another day. In this context, we can point to the conclusion of @Josh and one of our other comrades on this matter - Dr. Rob's excellent article: Lonely Planet Comets With the Oort Cloud being established as our 'out there' object, we can now move on to the game. With this in mind, we've expanded our core set of objects in to the Oort Cloud, as well as the Gaultan Black Hole and a new, already forgotten object, the Lancelet \(so named due to it's appearance\). But before any of that, a re-grouping of our Horizons is in order. While the Old Universe Terminus has fallen out of fashion I am inclined to keep it, but with a few modifications.

Here, we'll compare a couple of characters that are in the same location, to see if they're worth combative. Oort Cloud: It has a unique revolution around it and functions somewhat like a black hole, creating a repulsive force in a sphere around itself (though its radius is about a zillion times larger than most). It is presumably about 22000 ly in diameter, though its current state hasn't allowed for any of us to be able to measure its exact size. There is no significant object other than the Moon inside the sphere, so it is safe to say that this is the most extreme object
